I was born in a village called Achanputhur, in the southern part of India. My parents raised me and my four sibling brothers with strict discipline and with the essential fear of God that laid a strong, christian foundation on my childhood and teen years and in the appointed time, paved the way for me and my second elder brother to step into full time ministry. I am so very thankful to God for the godly atmosphere that prevailed at our home those early years of my life and for my godly parents who feared the Lord. more...
